Sex Trafficking Study Findings

• Combating sex trafficking requires proactive multi-disciplinary collaboration to:
  ➢ Identify and intervene with at-risk youth;
  ➢ Increase awareness, education, and training;
  ➢ Identify, recover, and treat victims; and,
  ➢ Reduce recruitment and demand.

• Other states and localities in Virginia have experienced success by implementing this collaborative approach.
Combating Sex Trafficking in Virginia

Sex trafficking intersects with numerous other problems facing Virginia, such as:

- Child physical and sexual abuse;
- Drug addiction/Opioid crisis;
- Behavioral issues in schools;
- Juvenile delinquency/status offenses;
- Suicide;
- Mental health;
- Health care (e.g., pregnancy, STD’s);
- Gangs; and,
- Domestic violence.
Sex Trafficking Study Findings

• Commercial sex is a lucrative industry.
  ➢ Minimal start-up costs
  ➢ High profit margins
  ➢ Low-risk for the trafficker

• Sex trafficking does not involve consenting adults.
Sex Trafficking Study Findings

• The internet and social media easily allow for the recruitment of victims and sale of sex across the United States.
  ➢ Recruitment: social media platforms, e.g. Facebook, Instagram, Snapchat.
  ➢ Demand: message boards for “hobbyists”; and,
  ➢ Supply: numerous websites, both domestic and international, to advertise the sale of sex.
Sex Trafficking Study Findings

• Victims are often vulnerable, struggling with dysfunctional families, past abuse, trauma, and low self-esteem.

• Victims are frequently recruited into the lifestyle as juveniles because of their vulnerabilities.
  - Traffickers prey on victims’ desire for love, hope, and sense of belonging.
  - Traffickers target at-risk youth (i.e. missing, endangered, runaways, foster children).
  - Victims form an emotional and psychological bond with their trafficker.
Sex Trafficking Study Findings

• Victims do not identify themselves as “victims” and do not realize they are being “trafficked”.

• Traffickers often provide juveniles with false identities, dates of birth, and coach them to lie about their true identity.

• The criminal justice system often treats victims as criminals.
A Sex Trafficking Victim’s Progression (1-2 yrs.)

Sex Trafficking Study Findings

• Adolescent brain development is significantly altered by traumatic experiences.
• Trafficking victims often suffer from multiple forms of trauma, which may have occurred both prior to and/or during the trafficking, and require enormous amounts of services:
  ➢ Physical, verbal, and mental abuse;
  ➢ Sexual abuse or violence;
  ➢ Drug abuse or dependence; and,
  ➢ Mental health challenges.
Sex Trafficking Study Findings

• Victims face numerous challenges when attempting to leave the lifestyle, such as:
  ➢ No support structure due to isolation;
  ➢ Lack of basic life skills due to reliance on trafficker;
  ➢ Difficulty securing housing and employment;
  ➢ Challenges obtaining identification documents;
  ➢ Health issues due to inadequate medical care; and,
  ➢ Criminal record.

• It typically takes a victim numerous attempts to successfully leave the lifestyle.
Sex Trafficking Study Findings

- Resources for both juvenile and adult victims of sex trafficking are extremely limited in Virginia.
  - No standards exist in Virginia for providing services to sex trafficking victims.

- The lack of resources leaves Virginia law enforcement officers with few options other than to arrest a trafficked victim.
Sex Trafficking Study Findings

Three common types of traffickers include:

• Pimp Control: “Man in sex-trafficking case found guilty”; The Daily Progress (4/26/18) (Albemarle)

• Gang Control: “Local Bloods gang member sentenced for prostituting minor”; WTKR (6/3/2016) (Norfolk)

• Familial: “Portsmouth man sentenced to 40 years in prison for pimping and beating his wife for a decade”; The Virginian-Pilot (11/20/17) (Norfolk)
Sex Trafficking Study Findings

• The demand for commercial sex is high.

• Different types of sex buyers exist:¹
  ➢ Situational;
  ➢ Preferential; and,
  ➢ Opportunistic.

• Steps must be taken to address the demand by:
  ➢ Deterring the purchase of sex;
  ➢ Holding sex buyers accountable; and,
  ➢ Educating sex buyers on the impact to victims.

Sex Trafficking Study Findings

• The traditional criminal justice response to sex trafficking is not working.
  ➢ Since Virginia’s commercial sex trafficking statute was enacted in 2015, the large majority of arrests and prosecutions have occurred in one locality.

• Virginia needs to focus efforts on addressing the root causes of sex trafficking.
Sex Trafficking Study Findings

- Identifying victims and potential victims of sex trafficking is extremely difficult.

- Proactive steps must be taken to identify at-risk youth across all systems (e.g. schools, social services, law enforcement).

- Awareness, education, and training on the unique aspects of sex trafficking must be provided to numerous professionals across these systems.
